1.0 EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

In Liberia, Members of the House of Representatives (HoR) are elected for six years with three cardinal functions: Lawmaking, Representation and Oversight. As Liberia's prime democratic advancement institution, Naymote Partners for Democratic Development considered the Legislature as the fulcrum of Liberia's democracy because of its constitutional responsibilities to enact laws, represent citizen interests, oversee executive policy implementation and performance. However, citizens don't often hear from those elected lawmakers until the next election. This makes the Legislative Accountability Project (LAP) a necessary platform to promote accountability, make elected lawmakers more accountable, accessible and responsive to their constituents thereby building citizens trust in elections and democratic processes.

The LAP is an independent monitoring and tracking tool that enables civil society actors and voters to evaluate the implementation of campaign promises made by elected lawmakers. The report focuses on actions taken from January 2018-January 2019 on promises made by 12 lawmakers (out of 73 lawmakers) during the 2017 legislative election. NAYMOTE hopes to sustain the tracking of lawmakers campaign promises to the next election, if financially supported. The project is based on the theory of change that when citizens have access to information on the status of their elected lawmakers campaign promises, citizens become civically engaged, they are more informed about their lawmakers action, able to hold them accountable, and make informed decisions at the ballot box.

A review of 73 of lawmakers' campaign promises highlighted the following: 54 of these lawmakers mentioned scholarships and improving education within their respective districts as part of their campaign promises, 35 mentioned the provision of quality healthcare in their respective districts as part of their campaign promises, and 7 lawmakers mentioned lawmaking or introducing legislations as part of their campaign promises.

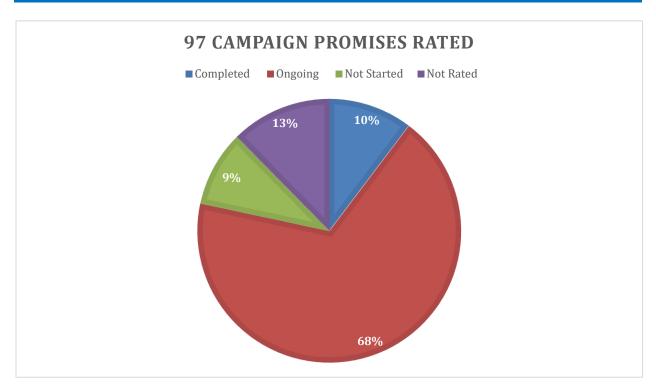

During the one year period, NAYMOTE identified, documented, tracked, and rated a total of 97 campaign promises from the 12 elected lawmakers (10 males and 2 females) including three incumbents and nine new members. Of the 97 campaign promises tracked and rated, 10 were rated as completed, 66 promises are ongoing, 9 not started, and 12 not rated due to the lack of information to easily verify whether an action has been taken on a promise.

The lawmakers monitored were selected from NAYMOTE's project locations: Representatives Prince K. Moye, Moima Briggs Mensah and Robert F. Womba from Bong County, Dixon W. Seboe, Richard N. Koon, Samuel R. Enders and Rustonlyn S. Dennis of Montserrado County, Dorwohn T. Gleekia, Roger S.W. Y. Domah and Larry Youngquoi of Nimba County, Alexander Poure from Rivergee County and Zoe E. Pennue from Grand Gedeh County. Since the ascendency of these 12 elected lawmakers into office, actions have been taken towards the implementation of 76 campaign promises (10 completed and 66 ongoing) made by these 12 lawmakers during the first year in office, which is a good start.

Of the 10 completed promises, community development projects, including the establishment of the clan offices, community roads, bridges, and the construction of town halls, accounted for six of those completed projects, while the formation of district development council accounted for three of those promises completed and the construction of one health center accounted for one of the many promises.

Twenty-seven of the promises ongoing focused on health and education, with education accounting for 15 of those ongoing promises and health care provision accounting for 12 of those ongoing promises. These promises are directly linked to the administration's Pro Poor Agenda for Prosperity and Development–Pillar One: Power to the People and are also linked to the Sustainable Development Goals supported by the United Nations Development Programme, the European Union, and the United States Agency for International Development.

1.1 GRAPHIC REPRESENTATION OF PROGRESS RATING OF PROMISES AND PERFORMANCE

The institution identified, tracked, and rated these promises over a period of the one year. The promises were then categorized based on four scales as highlighted below:

- 1. Completed: This is when a promise has been tracked and confirmed to be achieved.
- 2. Ongoing: This is when action is taken towards achieving a promise, but has not yet been fully achieved.
- 3. Not Started: This is when no concrete action has taken place in response to a given promise.
- 4. Not Rated: This is when information is not easily accessible to verify whether an action has been taken on a promise.

1.2 ANALYSIS OF THE CAMPAIGN PROMISES PER ELECTED LAWMAKERS

In Bong County: Representative Moima Briggs Mensah, of electoral district # 6, made 12 campaign promises, of which four are rated completed, six ongoing, and two not started. Representative Robert F. Womba, of electoral district # 4, made 11 promises, none of which were completed, seven ongoing, three not started, and one not rated. Representative Prince K. Moye, of electoral district # 2, made seven campaign promises, none completed, five ongoing, and two not rated.

In Montserrado County: Representative Rustonlyn S. Dennis, of electoral district # 4, made eight promises, none completed, eight ongoing. Representative Richard N. Koon of electoral # 11 made nine promises, one completed, seven ongoing, and one not started. Representative Dixon W. Seboe of electoral district # 16 made eight promises, one completed, five ongoing, and two not rated. Representative Samuel Enders, electoral district # 6 made four campaign promises, none completed, two ongoing, and two not rated.

In Nimba County: Representative Larry Youngquoi, of electoral district # 8, made seven campaign promises, one completed, and six ongoing. Representative Dorwhohn Twain Gleekia, of electoral district # 6, made nine promises none completed, five ongoing, two not started, and two not rated. Representative Roger S. W. Y. Domah, of electoral district # 7, made eight campaign promises, one completed, five ongoing, and two not rated.

In Grand Gedeh County: Representative Zoe E. Pennue, of electoral # 1, made seven campaign promises, two completed, and five ongoing.

In Rivergee County: Representative Alexander Poure, electoral district # 1, made seven campaign promises, none completed, five ongoing, one not started, and one not rated.

2.0 INTRODUCTION

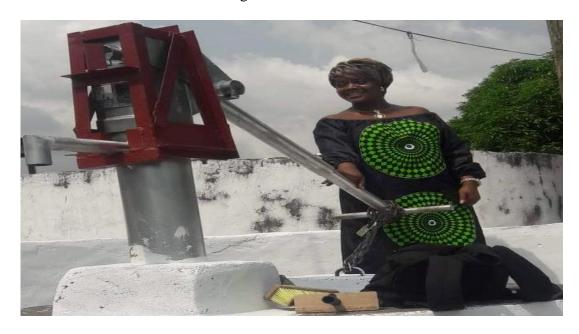

This report presents the status of promises tracked, documented and rated against progress made by 12 selected members of the House of Representatives of the 54th National Legislature.

Campaign Promises were documented during the 2017 legislative election by the Institute for Research and Democratic Development (IREDD) and verified by Naymote Partners for Democratic Development, two of Liberia leading democratic advancement and good governance institutions. The report highlights NAYMOTE's assessment of these 12 selected lawmakers' campaign promises and subsequent performance on those promises between January 2018 and January 2019.

The Liberian Legislature is bicameral, comprising of the Senate and the House of Representatives. It consists of 103 members, elected from the 15 political subdivisions (counties) and 73 electoral districts, as direct representatives of the people. There are 30 senators elected, two from each of Liberia's 15 counties, who serve staggered nine-year terms, with a midterm election every six years. The 73 representatives are elected from the 73 electoral districts for a term of six years. According to Articles 29 & 34 of the constitution, their legislative functions are divided into the following three categories: lawmaking, representation, and oversight.

The following fundamental principles were followed in tracking and documenting legislators' campaign promises:

- Non-partisanship: The outcome of the tracking is free of political bias.
- Objectivity: The findings of this tracking are not based on any person's opinion or driven by their emotions, and are objectively verified.
- Evidence-based: The findings are informed by evidence triangulated from at least three sources in order to demonstrate due diligence.

3.0 METHODOLOGY

In tracking and documenting these promises, several distinct yet inter-related quantitative data monitoring tools were used. They included:

Extraction: In order to avoid a subjective approach in the selection of promises, all campaign promises contained in the IREDD publication per elected lawmakers and verified by NAYMOTE with selected lawmakers were tracked. However, some lawmakers modified and added to their campaign promises during a consultation with the NAYMOTE team and realizing their campaign promises were going to be tracked and monitored.

Verifying Promises: During the project, NAYMOTE held discussions and developed a campaign tracker matrix, and shared with selected lawmakers for verification. At the same time, most of the campaign promises made by these 12 lawmakers were verifiable, could be easily tracked but not time bound and quantified. However, some modification and addition of campaign promises were done with most of the 12 selected lawmakers.

Tracking and Monitoring: Promises were systematically tracked using different sets of tools or checklists (See performance analysis matrix). Tools were developed to track statements made by the elected lawmakers through radio stations, in newspapers, on social media/Facebook, visitations to lawmakers districts offices, and on-site visits were made to locations where physical infrastructure development projects linked to pre and post campaign promises were taking place.

A database was established where all information generated from the various tracking tools was stored and collated. In order to ensure accuracy, information on promises tracked was triangulated using primary data source Legislative Information Service (LIS), the Liberian Legislature social media Facebook page, the individual lawmakers' legislative annual reports were tracked and interviews conducted with some lawmakers during the period under reviewed. The outcome of this triangulation was also reinforced by the findings of on-site visits by NAYMOTE staff in the various counties and districts.

Through this triangulation method, data was analyzed, findings were generated, and conclusions made regarding whether a promise could be classified as completed, ongoing, not started, or not rated.

5.0 CONCLUSION:

The Legislative Accountability Project (LAP) like the President Meter Project is being used in Liberia for the first time to identify, track, document and rate progress made in the implementation of campaign promises made by elected officials.

On January 15, 2018, members of the Liberian House of Representatives convened their first sitting, with 43 newly elected lawmakers out of 73 members. Liberian voters are known for punishing incumbent lawmakers at the ballot box due to poor representation or neglect. This report saw actions taken by 12 selected lawmakers toward delivering on their campaign promises. The institution documented, tracked, and rated a total of 97 campaign promises from the 12 elected lawmakers (10 males and 2 females) including three incumbents and nine new members. Of the 97 campaign promises tracked and rated, 10 were rated as completed, 66 promises are ongoing, 9 not started, and 12 not rated.

NAYMOTE hopes this report of the 12 selected lawmakers will be taken in good faith and more action will be taken to deliver on ongoing promises within the second year of service. The institution hopes the report will be used by citizens to hold their elected officials accountable to deliver on the campaign promises made during the election. NAYMOTE is seeking financial support to expand the project across to other electoral districts in Liberia, which would help to reinforce and advance the country's democratic consolidation, thereby supporting the government's Pro Poor Agenda for better governance.

The Liberian Legislature is the fulcrum of Liberia's democracy because of its constitutional responsibilities to enact laws, represent citizen interests, oversee executive policy implementation and performance. However, too often, citizens do not hear from elected lawmakers until the next election. The Legislative Accountability Project provides a platform to make elected lawmakers more accountable, accessible and responsive to their constituents, thereby building citizens trust in elections and democratic processes.

Many thanks to the various District Development Council members, staffers of selected representatives that supported our team; our regional coordinators and volunteers who made onsite visitations; and to those lawmakers that were very responsive to our teams and sharing their annual reports with our institution. The LAP is gradually resonating with the elected officials and constituents to ensure campaign promises are fulfilled before the next election.

Big thank you to the National Endowment for Democracy for the grant support, the Institute for Research and Democratic Development for sharing copy of the campaign promises documented through the Strengthening Political Parties Program – SP3 funded by the United States Agency for International Development, implemented by the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs, and others for the unflinching support to this national effort designed to track campaign promises of elected officials to ensure democratic accountability.

6.0 RECOMMENDATIONS

The following recommendations are advanced for consideration by members of the House of Representatives:

- 1. Elected officials/lawmakers need to revise some of their campaign promises to make it more time bound and quantify them to make it easy to track.
- 2. Public education needed to help citizens to understand the workings of their lawmakers and lawmakers should be more accessible, responsive and accountable to the needs of their constituents.
- 3. There need to be a distinction between the County Development Funds projects and lawmakers self-supported projects to ensure accountability and transparency for public funds.
- 4. Financial support needed to expand the project to every electoral districts to track promises of all elected lawmakers.

ABOUT PARTNERS

Naymote Partners for Democratic Development is Liberia's prime democratic advancement institution established in 2001 by student's leaders and activists to promote citizens' understanding of democratic processes and the long-term benefits of their participation in these processes.

The institution had trained some of the most prominent young politicians in Liberia, through the Young Political Leadership School and has been one of the leading grassroots organizations promoting democracy, peace building, human rights and civic engagement in Liberia. The institution is a member of several professional networks including the World Movement for Democracy, the World Youth Movement for Democracy, the African Movement for Democracy and the National Civil Society Council, etc.

The institution since 2001 has initiated several programs to foster political accountability, thereby making elected leaders more accessible, responsible and accountable to the electorates. Naymote has built the capacity of local leaders to be more effective in-service delivery, increase youth and women participation in decision making processes, conducted research on citizens' perception on the working of their lawmakers and governance, assessed the quality of governance in Liberia, produced publications on youth participation in local government, fostering social accountability, a legislative guide to organize town hall meeting, a civic and voter's education guide amongst others.

The institution's executive director holds master's degree of Public Administration, the Finance and Administrative Officer hold a master's degree of Finance from the Cuttington University Graduate School in Liberia while the Program Director holds Masters of Conflict and Dispute Resolution from the University of Oregon, School of Law, USA. Our management team has benefitted for local and international capacity building trainings and has developed stills to facilitate community development programs, political organizing and leadership development programs, grassroots democracy enhancement programs, conduct research, election management and monitoring, etc.

The project is supported by the National Endowment for Democracy, a private, non-profit foundation dedicated to the growth and strengthening of democratic institutions around the world. Since its founding in 1983, the Endowment has remained on the leading edge of democratic struggles everywhere, while evolving into a multifaceted institution that is a hub of activity, resources and intellectual exchange for activists, practitioners and scholars of democracy all over the world. The NED is a key partner to Liberia's prime democratic advancement institution, Naymote Partners for Democratic Development.
