ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Naymote Partners for Democratic Development, Liberia's premier democratic advancement institution appreciate everyone who have contributed one way or the other towards the success of this publication.

Many thanks to the various District Development Council members and staffers of selected representatives that supported our team. To our regional coordinators and volunteers who made onsite visitations, we remain forever grateful.

Appreciations to those lawmakers that were very cooperative and responsive to our teams by sharing their annual reports with our institution. The LAP is gradually resonating with the elected officials and constituents to ensure campaign promises are fulfilled before the next election.

The National Endowment for Democracy (NED) has been our strong supporter over the years and has enhanced our institution's capacity to become Liberia's prime democratic advancement institution, we express profound gratitude to the Endowment for supporting this publication under the project: Enhancing Youth Civic Engagement in Post-Election Liberia.

Thanks to our institution county monitors for documenting promises, and others for the unflinching support to this national effort designed to track campaign promises of elected officials to ensure democratic accountability and build public trust in democratic governance.

To the thousands of Liberians who, since the formation of NAYMOTE-Liberia in 2001, have sought to be educated, empowered, and engaged in democratic processes: thanks for believing in our work over the years.

To the Executive Director, Eddie D. Jarwolo and hardworking staff of Naymote Partners for Democratic Development, this could not have been possible without your sincere dedication and hard work.

1.0 EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

In Liberia, Members of the House of Representatives (HoR) are elected for six years with three cardinal functions: Lawmaking, Representation and Oversight. As Liberia's prime democratic advancement institution, NAYMOTE Partners for Democratic Development considered the Legislature as the fulcrum of Liberia's democracy because of its constitutional responsibilities to enact laws, represent citizen interests, and oversee executive policy implementation and performance. However, citizens do not often hear from those elected lawmakers until the next election. This makes the Legislative Accountability Project (LAP) a necessary platform to promote political accountability, make elected lawmakers more accountable, accessible and responsive to their constituents thereby building citizens trust in elections and democratic processes.

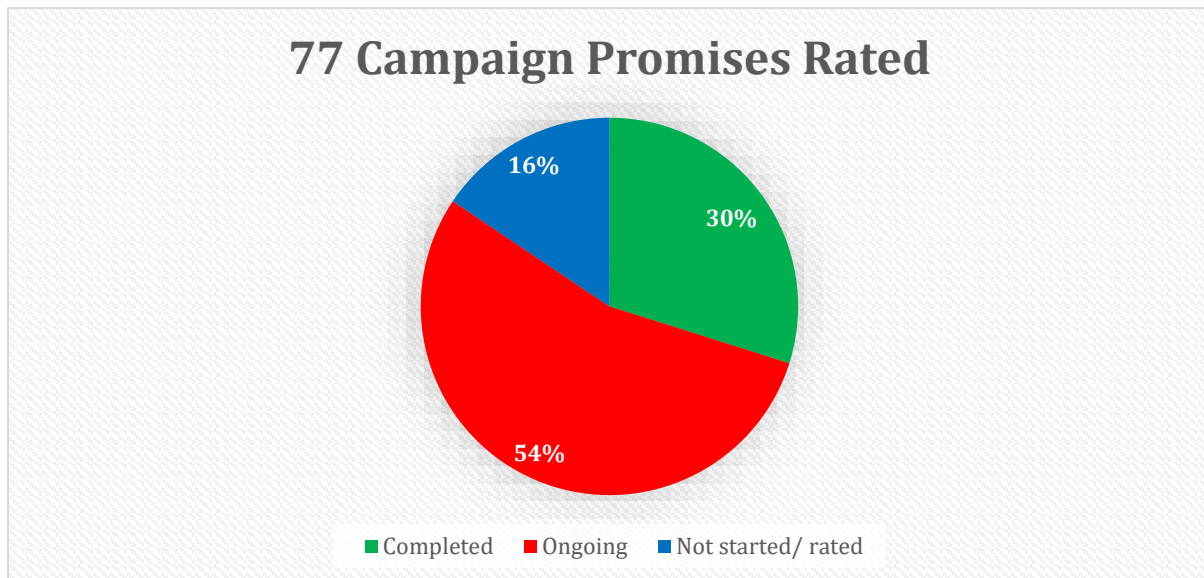

The LAP is an independent monitoring and tracking tool that enables civil society actors and voters to evaluate the implementation of campaign promises made by elected lawmakers. The report focuses on actions taken from January 2018-January 2021 on promises made by 9 lawmakers (out of 73 lawmakers) during the 2017 legislative election in Liberia. NAYMOTE hopes to sustain the tracking of lawmaker's campaign promises to the next election, if financially supported. The project is based on the theory of change that when citizens have access to information on the status of their elected lawmakers campaign promises, citizens become civically engaged, they are more informed about their lawmakers' action, able to hold them accountable, and make informed decisions at the ballot box during future elections.

The institution is pleased to release its 3-year performance report on nine (9) members of the House of Representatives, from Montserrado, Bong, Nimba, Grand Gedeh and Rivergee Counties covering January 2018- January 2021. Since the ascendancy of these representatives into office, actions have been taken towards a combined total of 77 campaign promises, of which 23 campaign promises were rated completed, 42 promises are ongoing, and 12 promises have not started or not rated due to the lack of available date to assess any action taken this is a great start within 3-year.

Majority of the promises tracked focused on the provision of social services including support to education, health care, construction or rehabilitation of community roads, market buildings, handpumps, setting up district development committees, renovation of school building, local government offices, support to youth and women groups, and agriculture projects, etc. Truly, little was achieved in lawmaking which is one of the cardinal functions of the lawmakers.

The lawmakers monitored were selected from NAYMOTE's project locations: Representatives Prince K. Moye, Moima Briggs Mensah and Robert F. Womba from Bong County, Richard N. Koon, Rev. Samuel R. Enders and Rustonlyn S. Dennis from Montserrado County, Roger S.W. Y. Domah from Nimba County, Alexander Poure from Rivergee County and Zoe E. Pennue from Grand Gedeh County.

1.1 GRAPHIC REPRESENTATION OF PROGRESS RATING OF PROMISES AND PERFORMANCE

The institution identified, tracked, and rated these promises over a period of three years. The promises were then categorized based on four scales as highlighted below:

1. Completed: This is when a promise has been tracked and confirmed to be achieved.
2. Ongoing: This is when action is taken towards achieving a promise but has not yet been fully achieved.
3. Not Started: This is when no concrete action has taken place in response to a given promise.
4. Not Rated: This is when information is not easily accessible to verify whether an action has been taken on a promise.

1.2 ANALYSIS OF THE CAMPAIGN PROMISES PER ELECTED LAWMAKERS

In Bong County: Representative Moima Briggs Mensah, of electoral district # 6 made 13 campaign promises, of which five are rated completed, and eight promises are ongoing. Representative Robert F. Womba, of electoral district # 4, made 12 promises, five of which were completed, six promises are ongoing, one has not started, and one not rated. Representative Prince K. Moya of electoral district # 2 (now Senator), made 7 campaign promises, none completed, six are ongoing, and one not rated due to the lack of available information.

Koon of electoral district # 11 made 10 promises, 2 completed and eight ongoing. 2.0 INTRODUCTION

This report presents the status of promises tracked, documented and rated against progress made by 9 selected members of the House of Representatives of the 54th National Legislature of Liberia.

The report highlights NAYMOTE's assessment of these 9 selected lawmakers' campaign promises and subsequent performance on those promises between January 2018 and January 2021.

The Legislature of Liberia is bicameral, comprises of the Senate and the House of Representatives. It consists of 103 members, elected from the 15 political subdivisions (counties) and 73 electoral districts, as direct representatives of the people. There are 30 senators elected, two from each of Liberia's 15 counties, who serve staggered nine-year terms, with a midterm election held every six years. The 73 representatives are elected from the 73 electoral districts for a term of six years. According to Articles 29 & 34 of the constitution, their legislative functions are divided into the following three categories: lawmaking, representation, and oversight.

The following fundamental principles were followed in tracking and documenting legislators' campaign promises:

- Non-partisanship: The outcome of the tracking is free of political bias.
- Objectivity: The findings of this tracking are not based on any person's opinion or driven by their emotions; they are objectively verified.
- Evidence-based: The findings are informed by evidence triangulated from at least three sources to demonstrate due diligence.

3.0 METHODOLOGY

In tracking and documenting these promises, several distinct yet inter-related quantitative data monitoring tools were used. They included:

Extraction: To avoid a subjective approach in the selection of promises, all campaign promises were tracked by NAYMOTE monitors and verified by the institution along with selected lawmakers. However, some lawmakers modified and added to their campaign promises during a consultation with the NAYMOTE team and realizing their campaign promises were going to be tracked and monitored.

Verifying Promises: During the project, NAYMOTE held discussions and developed a campaign tracker matrix, and shared with selected lawmakers for verification. At the same time, most of the campaign promises made by these 9 lawmakers were verifiable, could be easily tracked but not time bound and quantified. However, some modification and addition of campaign promises were done with most of the 9 selected lawmakers.

Tracking and Monitoring: Promises were systematically tracked using different sets of tools or checklists (See performance analysis matrix). Tools were developed to track statements made by the elected lawmakers through radio stations, in newspapers, on social media/Facebook. Visitations to lawmakers' districts offices, and on-site visits were made to locations where physical infrastructure development projects linked to pre and post campaign promises were taking place.

A database was established where all information generated from the various tracking tools was stored and collated. In order to ensure accuracy, information on promises tracked was triangulated using primary data source Legislative Information Service (LIS), the Liberian Legislature social media Facebook page, individual lawmakers' legislative annual reports were tracked and interviews conducted with some lawmakers during the period under reviewed. The outcome of this triangulation was also reinforced by the findings of on-site visits by NAYMOTE staff in the various counties and districts.

Through this triangulation method, data was analyzed, findings were generated, and conclusions made regarding whether a promise could be classified as completed, ongoing, not started, or not rated.

5.0 CONCLUSION:

The Legislative Accountability Project (LAP) like the President Meter Project is being implemented in Liberia for the first time to identify, track, document and rate progress made in the implementation of campaign promises made by elected officials.

On January 15, 2018, members of the Liberian House of Representatives convened their first sitting, with 43 newly elected lawmakers out of 73 members. Liberian voters are known for punishing incumbent lawmakers at the ballot box due to poor representation or neglect. This report saw actions taken by 9 selected lawmakers toward delivering on their campaign promises. The institution documented, tracked, and rated a total of 77 campaign promises from the 9 elected lawmakers (7 males and 2 females) including three incumbents and four new members. Of the 77 campaign promises tracked and rated, 30% were rated as completed, 54% promises are ongoing, 16% not started, or not rated due to limited date to assess action taken.

NAYMOTE hopes this report of the nine selected lawmakers will be taken in good faith and more action will be taken to deliver on ongoing promises within the next three year of service. The institution is hopeful that the report will be used by citizens to hold their elected officials accountable to deliver on the campaign promises made during the election.

The Liberian Legislature is the fulcrum of Liberia's democracy because of its constitutional responsibilities to enact laws, represent citizen interests, oversee executive policy implementation and performance. However, too often, citizens do not hear from elected lawmakers until the next election. The Legislative Accountability Project provides a platform to make elected lawmakers more accountable, accessible, and responsive to their constituents, thereby building citizens trust in elections and democratic processes.

6.0 RECOMMENDATIONS

The following recommendations are advanced for consideration by members of the House of Representatives:

1. Elected officials/lawmakers need to focus more on implementing their campaign promises and keep holding town hall meetings with their constituents,
2. Public education needed to help citizens to understand the workings of their lawmakers and lawmakers should be more accessible, responsive, and accountable to the needs of their constituents.
3. There need to be a distinction between the County Development Funds projects and lawmakers self-supported projects to ensure accountability and transparency for public funds.
